Belong.

Our Summer Institute is an intercultural place where you can talk about what you do, and not have to explain yourself. It's a place where being intercultural is a passion we share and a part of what we all do.

Build.

Our life's work is building bridges among cultural differences, softening barriers to living life with cultural others, and probing the mysteries of unknown places and peoples. We do so not only to teach more wisely, train more effectively, and manage more thoughtfully, but also for the sheer pleasure of experiencing differences.

Learn.

You will find the Summer Institute has its own culture characterized by an intense learning experience, relevance to professional development, emphasis on knowledge and skills, and a respectful and supportive opportunity to learn and share. Our highly qualified faculty recognize the wealth of insight and experience participants bring to the workshops — together we create an interactive learning experience.

SIIC provides a workable, practical, research-based framework for my own intercultural growth and development, and many necessary tools for effecting constructive and proactive change with my clients, and within my organization.

Kennesaw State University*

Collaborate.

The Summer Institute atmosphere is inclusive—we all find that our cultural differences are appreciated along with an interest in shared learning.

Achieve.

Whether you are leading a global team, designing a new diversity initiative, preparing a course, or directing a study abroad program, you will have a lively week (or two, or three) of intense engagement with intercultural issues and resources—networking, listening, questioning, and indulging in the company of diverse and similarly dedicated professionals.

ADVANCE YOUR CAREER. Take the next step.

Join us this summer.
